Christmas Cheer Brightens Detroit

The Christmas season arrived in Detroit with numerous activities and exhibits in anticipation of another gala holiday. The Christmas music department

The Christmas music department is well covered with over fifty choral performances in the city between December 15 and 28.

Detroit's Town Hall and Grinnell's will present a Christmas music program at the Ford Auditorium during the pre-Christmas holidays. "Amahl and the Night Visitors," a traditional cantata, will be the Columbus Boy's Choir's contribution this season. The Madrigal Society is offering renditions of selected Christmas

"Hansel and Gretel" is scheduled as a production at the Art Institute. Continuing with the Christmas spirit are displays at the Institute and the elaborate Christmas Fantasy at the Ford Fotunda, appearing for the seventh year.

School Checked

Due for a check up? So it seemed when Mr. Roland Lehker came to SAH November 30 to inspect the school. Mr. Lehker was sent by the Bureau of School Services of the University of Michigan for the regular biennial inspection.

The B - average students of a school which has earned accreditation are not required to take a special entrance test when they apply to a college.

St. Anthony has been continuously accredited since 1928.

At the Detroit Civic Center a 75foot Christmas tree is alight, and a huge mailbox for letters to Santa is installed in Capital Park.

This year, dainty animated boy and girl angels scurry about in a heaven of spun sugar clouds making stars and performing other amusing tasks.

Seniors to Give 'Nuts in May'

"Nuts in May", a comedy by Cornelia Otis Skinner, is scheduled as the 1960 senior class play. Over 80 seniors tried out last week for the sixteen parts.

The play, which is being directed by Mr. William Mandigo, will be staged February 6 and 7 staged February 6 and 7.

"Nuts In May" dramatizes the confusing events in the life of a teen-age boy who is beginning to be interested in girls.

"The two ingredients which must be present to make the play a success are hard work and responsibility," emphasized Mr. Mandigo. He promised the participants much fun and an experience they would long remember.

The cast includes Marie Perham, Kenneth Kulinski, Geraldine Swiderski, Adrienne Kress, Gerald Dugelar, Jackie Grillo, Eileen Watson, Linda Lennert, Lillian Shynkar, Charles Jaeger, Sue Stano, Marcelin Meloche, and Don Koschmeder.

"Oscar" Goes to 'The Birds

Portraying a bird must be an exceptionally difficult role for an actor. Yet, students from St. Clement High School of Centerline "flew" through their parts as such so convincingly that they copped first prize at the second Genesian Drama Festival, November 28. Their production, meriting "oscar" for tae best play, was Aristophanes' "The Birds," a comedy in which a group of Grecians seek the perfect state.

The festival, sponsored by the Detroit unit of the National Theatre Conference, drew more than 2,000 teachers and students to St. Mary's Academy, Monroe. It was dedicated to St. Genesius, patron of the Catholic theatre.

Student actors from eight Detroit area high schools, including Servite, Austin, and Immaculata, staged plays. To help these aspirants of acting careers, Criticijudge Mr. James Nix of the Indiana Joint High School faculty offered tips for interpretation of particular scenes and situations.

Chairman of the entire program was the Rev. Samuel Listerman, S. J., of U. of D. High School.

CSMC Broadens Scope

"Prayer, study, and sacrifice," the threefold aim of the CSMC, is being completely fulfilled by the Anthonader unit. It now realizes the "study" phase in its newly organized study clubs.

The five mission clubs meet biweekly to probe the current subjects of communism and the lay apostolate. More than eighty students are enrolled in the groups.

The meetings are under the direction of Fr. Paul Bobay, Fr. Mark Beischel, Fr. Raymond Bauer, Fr. Joseph Sylvester, and Fr. Joseph Grilliot, with Fr. Richard Danielak, CSMC moderator, at the head.

Awards presented for the best play, actors, and supporting actors incited competition. St. Clement took two prizes. The lead player of "The Birds" received a best actor "oscar."

Several faculty members and students from St. Anthony attended the festival.

The tournaments are the main activity of the St. Thomas More Forum, a confederation of Detroit-area Catholic schools sponsoring forensic debating. St. Anthony was represented by Joe Trachy 316 and Sharon Bracci 314, affirmative speakers, and Gerri Gorcyca 215 and Joan Schwab 217 as the

experience in refutation.

The school received 176 out of a possible 300 points, winning by forfeit only one of six matches. "We had a distinct disadvantage as several schools have had debate as a course for three years," commented Gerri.

The forum originated at a University of Detroit debate clinic in September, which a manber of prospective SAH debaters attended. It outlined the entire program for the year with a briefing session, offering authoritative speakers and a specimen debate between U. of D. and Wayne State University on the topic for the year, increased labor legislation.

At the first meet, St. Anthony's affirmative opposed Austin, Dominican, and Mercy High Schools and the negative debated with Rosary, Mercy, and Dominican teams. Other members of the forum include Catholic Central, Immaculata, and U. of D. High.

Mr. Timothy Donohue, junior English teacher, acted as a judge for other teams at the tournament.

March Family Steals Applause The Christmas program "Little Women," as staged by St. Anthony

The Christmas program "Little Women," as staged by St. Anthony Mixed Chorus and Glee Club, presented good music, effective staging, and enjoyable surprises.

Geraldine Swiderski offered a realistic picture of Jo, the tomboy with a soft heart. Sue Benninger, Denise Abood and Carol Mobley fitted well into the parts they portrayed as Amy, Meg, and Beth.

The solo by Betty Zajac complemented the group singing of the Glee Club and Freshman Chorus.

The story "Little Women," the favorite Louisa Mae Alcott family novel, presented the heart warming tale of a family's upsets and triumphs. It described the life and loves of the four March girls.

John Brooke (Dennis Meloche), Professor Bhear (Michael Breston), and Teddy Lawrence (Gerald Dugelar) each found his "heart" in the March home.

Blustering Aunt March (Carol Setia) brought humor to the stage with her outspoken manner. She attempted to manage the family affairs and although she didn't show it, was fond of her brother's family.

Music included "Home for the Holidays," "The Merry Christmas Polka," and the theme "Little Women." The Glee Club offered its rendition of the "Birthday of a King" and "Arise and Sing."

Gay costuming added to the spirit of the program, highlighting the red and green Christmas colors.

Classes Mingle

Festive Christmas packages, gaily festooned sleighs, and a brightly-decorated tree expressed the holiday mood at the second annual Junior-Senior Mixer, Sunday, December 20 in the gym. Frank Tatarelli's band supplied the music.

The mixer, which was designed last year to promote better feelings between the upperclassmen, is fast becoming a tradition. Junior and senior councils, under the direction of Sister Lauren and Sister Anaclete, planned the affair.

Attention was centered on a Nativity scene, and two snowmen enlivened the atmosphere.

Cameras Click

Enlarging the scope of its activities, the Camera Club now includes the production of wallet-size photos in its work.

The ten members have undertaken the task of photographing the ninth, tenth, and eleventh graders individually and making pictures at the price of twelve for 50 cents.

Proceeds will go to the School Sisters of Notre Dame for the motherhouse at Mequon, Wisconsin.

Msgr. Horkan Coordinates Schools

Very little free time is an inevitable handicap to the Rt. Rev. Vincent J. Horkan, who has recently been honored by the Church with he title of monsignor. As superintendent of parochial schools, he is responsible for all educational developments in the Archdiocese of Detroit.

During his two years in this office Msgr. Horkan has concretized some very definite plans for both grade and high school curricula. What he considers the most notable of recent developments in the school itinerary is the introduction of a science program in elementary schools.

To provide background for science teachers a training program is broadcast on TV over channel 56.

The superintendent believes that training in English grammar, composition, speech, are to be strongly emphasized. He sanctions a speech unit for elementary school use.

"I believe in a deeper appreciation of past history," he says. "I think, however, that information should be given upon current affairs. History classes should allow time for discussion of current events."

"But the most important subject in Catholic schools should be religion," Msgr. Horkan asserts. To make the subject more interesting, revision of the units is in progress.

(superintendent of parochial schools)

Msgr. Horkan, who received his doctorate at the Catholic University of America, is a former teacher at Marygrove College and Sacred Heart Seminary. He also had been pastor of St. Paul Parish in Grosse Pointe.

All the Wonder of Love

HERE IS A CHILD with the sweet simplicity and helpless dependency of infancy, who has been born in a stable.

Any child is not simple in himself, but a complex creation of life and love. In every tiny figure are all the elements used in creation, all that elevates men to power of will and glory of intellect, to potency of accomplishment and growth of emotion. He is the incarnation of parental love and God's creative love, which fashions an immortal soul in the little

This Child Who is above all children is the Life of the world. In Him love meets as never before. The love of a woman for God and the love of God for the fairest of His creatures unite.

All the wonder that is love is in this Child of Bethlehem. Christmas shows the triumph of both human and divine love. To understand the Baby in the manger is to know why God made us all and why He called upon His Son to live and die for unworthiness incarnate.

We serve and love and hail the birth of a God Who has the power to do whatever we ask, and who has made, redeemed, and sanctified us in anticipation of the eternal Christmas of our souls.

don't pretend to be an expert in such "matters," so I won't even attempt to answer you; instead, the letter box is open to any and all suggestions on how arthritic professors can be transformed into aggressive Gene Kellys.

Dear Editor: I would like to express my appreciation and that of seven hundred and some fellow students to Msgr. Horkan and Sister Gilbertine for allowing the entire student body to dismiss early the week before Christmas. That extra hour or so gives us just that much more time to fit homework and part-time jobs easily into those busy days.

A Bigshot?

JOHNNY IS A BIG SHOT now. No, he didn't win an election and he doesn't play first-string varsity. But he decided to make a name for himself and he has. It was done in as small a way as acquiring a new vocabulary.

In an amazingly short time, he was able to spice his conversation with words and phrases most hardened sailors haven't heard. The jokes and stories he tells to entertain his friends never require an encore. And they're seldom repeated-for Johnny is the only one who enjoys the use of such picturesque speech.

Classmates who know the score carefully avoid him. Some mumble their excuses and leave at the first sight of the suggestive "joke books" that he keeps hidden in his math

The girls who otherwise would be attracted by his smile and curly locks turn down his dates with disgust. Poor Johnny might as well be a mouse-he's certainly no man!

In his own eyes Johnny seems to be the big shot of his dreams. He fails to recognize the impression he makes on others. But until he takes those crude expressions back to the Stone Age and buries them beneath a rock, he'll be alone in his field, at the bottom of the list, and in the back seat.

Bernie Bak:

On ' Payola'

An article of nationwide interest, especially affecting the nation's radiolistening teenagers, has hit the headlines throughout the country. The scandal sheets have recently provided for the unfavorable publicity of disc jockeys who receive money from a recording company for "pushing" a tune. Some term this action bribery;

by others it is considered a fair wage in exchange for a service Either way, the public has added a new word to its vocabulary:

"payola." From the tangle of headlines and discussion on the subject, a highly debatable question emerges. Is "payola" honest? We are not unaware of the fact that this same sort of thing is carried on in various other occupations and is not limited to the "sound" entertainment field. Politicians call it logrolling. Wholesalers, manufacturers, and other advertisers engage in some form of payola, but perhaps not to as great an extent as the recording companies. Consider it merely a gift of gratitude or payment for a job done.

When it comes to buying arecord, there is always me tendency to choose a popular tune, not one heard one or two times in the past week. I suppose we would be amazed at the number of really good tunes that never made the top forty because no one bought "air time" for them. In view of these points, reconciling pavola to morality is a difficult task.

"Payola" in its numerous forms has become a definite part of the American way of life. The exposition of it can be a step in the slow process in raising the moral standards in the United States. If all other forms of graft are dealt with as effectively as the disc jockey payoff, we can be assured that morality and standards are on the

Dennis, Arlene Choose Accounting, Social Work

Whether in sports or in other fields of competition, Dennis Anderson 215 is a person who hates to lose. It is this winner's attitude that has given him the ability to excel in his endeavors.

As first - string quarterback Dennis led the Teuton football team to its first second-place finish in four years. He attributes the team's success to the strong spirit of unity among the players.

For his ability as a quarterback, Dennis was given honorable mention on the Detroit News All-City team.

Dennis is also a guard on the Teuton basketball team. He thinks that the Teutons have a good chance to secure at least a thirdplace berth in the standings this

With the aid of scholarship offers from Dartmouth College and the University of Buffalo he plans a career in accounting.

Dennis is a transfer student from St. Ladislaus High School, When he came to SAH last January, he found easy adjustment in his new school. "Everyone was very friendly and helpful to me," he reports.

Sports have been his hobby since his grade school days. Coach Larry Chadzinski, then a teacher at St. Ladislaus, encouraged this

He is also a member of the letterman's club and the Holy Name Society.

The challenging world of social work is the intended career of Arlene Bauer 116. Her interest in people, particularly underprivileged persons, has led her to choose this occupation. If a college degree is not realizable. Arlene's alternate choice for a career is secretarial work

She is a sales clerk at Kresge's; and last year she was elected secretary of the freshman class. Interested in music, she is a member of the Glee Club.

A college prep student, Arlene calls English her favorite subject because of her deep enjoyment of literature. She also comments, "The recent conferences sponsored by the religion instructors are an excellent outlet for any misunderstandings the students may have."

Her favorite pastime is skating Her hobby, sewing, is an aid for her wardrobe.

An outstanding aim of Arlene's is to formally study German. Because her father is of German origin, she understands the language, and desires a speaking knowledge of it.

Progressive Classes Attract 13 Students

Broadening their intellectual backgrounds, 13 SAH students have been accepted for advanced classes offered by the Detroit Public School

Room 11 Bypassed

As bustling students exchange classes, as frustrated janitors sweep the basement floor, one little room remains secluded and unnoticed by most of the student body. That room is No. 11, at the foot of the Field Ave. stairs.

Behind its closed door, however, more has been going on than you might think. Before the gym was built, Room 11 was used as a medical room for athletics. It was equipped with a bed, sun lamp, medical kit, and everything else needed to ease the Electronics is the main interest of aches and pains of SAH sportsmen.

Then in 1956 the Future Nurses took over and changed it into a home nursing room. For two years girls learned the qualities and characteristics of a nurse there. Then in 1958, due to the illness of S. Mary Anne, the club's moderator, Room 11 was left

Finally, in September of 1958, it was selected to house the CSMC's store of second-hand books. Still in use by this organization, Room 11 was during the recent card drive a storage place for Christmas cards.

Pass 100 - Official

Geraldine Gorcyca 215, Beverly Lange 217, and Alma Ghosen 218 are the three girls who merit a Gregg shorthand certificate for their 100 wpm officials. They had the least errors of all in the Shorthand II class in their 5-minute Gregg transcription.

Seven other girls passed the official test on their first attempt.

These classes, instituted three years ago, are directed toward students displaying superior scholarship. They are held after school at various public high schools of Detroit. Twenty-five per cent of the enrollment of the classes is made up of parochial school

Nuclear science and radiation biology are the topics of discussion for Carol Sassin 115, Fred Ream 118, Ed Paluszewski 216, and Dennis Gallus 120.

Florence Ouellette 118 and Ray Mueller 118 are seeking knowledge of French. The German language offers a challenge for Joan Puidokas 216 and Mary DePalma Joanne Paval 315 Sue Grenda 219, and Betty Burcz 315 plan to bring their additional knowledge of math back to algebra class. Electronics is the main interest of Paul Horbal 217 and Rich Mielcarek 119, so the course will give them a hint of their future occupation.

High Standards, Hard Work Highlight Secretarial Course

High standards, hard work, and competent instruction have gained for the secretarial science department of St. Anthony an excellent reputation.

"We have been told by examining agencies that our students rate five times better in shorthand and three times better in typing than other schools," says S. M. Joanella, department head.

Annually the department graduates a sizeable number of qualified typists, stenographers, file clerks, and other general office workers to supply many of Detroit's business firms.

important parts of business procedure, are offered to juniors and seniors. In Shorthand I and Typing I, the foundation for a stenographer's career is laid.

The first year of typing stresses the presentation and eventual mastery of the keyboard. A goal of 40 words a minute is set.

Transcription and office procedures are emphasized during the second year of typing. The required ypeed is increased to 65 words per minute.

To attain the required speeds in typing, home practice is encouraged.

The typing classes make use of ten Olympia typewriters recently purchased by the department as well as six IBM electric machines.

By covering one lesson each day, girls in Shorthand I can attain the speed of 80 words per minute required for admission to the advanced course.

During the first semester, shorthand homework often requires two hours of nightly study and practice. As the year progresses, however, this time may dwindle to half an hour, depending upon the student's ability and Office practice is offered to seniors who have successfully completed one year of typing. Filing, telephone technique, grooming, and job applications are topics covered by the course.

The operation of a mimeograph machine and the ditto duplicator is also a part of the course.

Upon completion of the bookkeeping course offered to juniors and seniors, a student is capable of installing a complete set of books for a small business

General business, offered to sophomores, acquaints the students with units on types of insurance, transportation, banking, and communication.

Graduates of the higher business courses are placed almost immediately in the various firms in the city. They are selected through a battery of tests administered by the Michigan Employment Service, the Civil Service administration, and the F. B. I.

"The standards we have set are high, and we expect that the students meet them," explains S. M. Lauren, who teaches shorthand, bookkeeping and office practice The tremendous amount of work is worth much when the girls finally attain their positions.

SAHers Off Santa's List

Santa's gift list is already made up, but on checking it twice it seems that some SAHers "ain't gettin' nuttin' for Christmas."

Because they have been naughty instead of nice, the following may find their stockings empty:

Barbara Joyner . . . for not keeping her hanger in her desk.

Amy Ksiazek . . . for walking like a duck. Lester Scotti . . . for alway

John Gloss . . . for keeping a standing debt of seven cents with a fellow driving student.

Dolores Rogalski . . . for weaving in and out of traffic on the way to school.

Terry Miesel . . . for begging fruit from her friends for her meager lunch.

Gerry Swiderski . . . for pestering the Prelude staff to put her name in the paper.

Frank Gualdoni . . . for being an all-round naughty boy.

There is still a little time left to Darlene Farr 218 thinks she'll the set of luggage she'll need for nursing school.

If Santa's wallet could stand the strain, the requests of SAHers might be answered.

But since cars, radios, and hi-fi record players are expensive, they have but one alternative. "We can dream, can't we?

"NEXT CHRISTMAS I'LL spend my money on myself, not others," sighs Sue Ducharme 217, taking account of her empty hand bag.

STUDENTS' CHRISTMAS WISHES Surprises Await Jolly St. Nick

If wishing were having, this Christmas would be the most expensive yet for the parents of many SAHers.

But there is a big difference between what these students would like for Christmas and what they will probably get; and the problem seems to be a financial one, which is no wonder since so many want such extravagant gifts.

Marlene Sapienza 216, Dennis Abood 120, and Barry Schwab 119 would rather have Pontiacs. Explains Dennis, "That or any car is better than taking a bus to school.

Paul Horbal 217 prefers a Falcon, Ron Riggi 217 a Chevy Impala, and Richard Sharer 116 a Cadillac.

Transistor radios are another much-wanted gift. Sally Lessnau 215, Richard Augustyn 122, and Tom Kolodziewski 216 are hoping 118 would enjoy a radio more than she does TV.

Because she likes to listen to jazz albums, Jan Rutkowski 218 would like a hi-fi phonograph on which to play them. Concetta Locriccio 120 knows she won't get one, but she's still hoping, too.

Some SAHers had rather unusual requests for Santa. Ted Dempz 316 wants a weight-lifting set to build his muscles

Fred Hughes 315 would like to schange his glasses for a pair of bifocal contact lenses.

But perhaps the most unusual wish was the one expressed by Loretta Carr 218. She dreams of owning a real live horse, a Tennessee walker.

"What do I want for Christmas?" repeated a shivering Bob Desnoyer 113 one chilly morning. "A set of long underwear."

Stuffed animals are another favorite Christmas wish among the girls. Explains Virginia DuCasse 214, "They can't talk back."

64 Trophies Fill Cases

Past and present, the Teuton victories have not gone unrewarded. The SAH trophy case in the lobby of the gym is filled almost to capacity. The school's sport laurels total 64, won during the years 1923 to 1959. This year, the derby was regained from St. Catherine.

Four soup bowls from '49, '42,

A favorite sport of the past at St. Anthony is tennis. Successful Teuton tennis teams piled up seven gold trophies in the years '35 to '40, including city championship in

Fourteen of the handsomest trophies in the case were awarded to Championship Teuton basketball teams over the years

The Teutonettes have also fared well. The Girls basketball teams have been honored 23 times and softball championettes copped two trophies in 1958 and 1959.

Teuton Name Historic

Did vou ever wonder why the Teutons were called Teutons?

It wasn't just something someone made up.

St. Anthony's was originally a German parish, and the language was even taught in the grade school as a part of the curriculum.

The Teutons had been one of the powerful Germanic tribes which overran Europe. Thus the name was picked for the athletes of this parish with the hope that those bearing the name would do justice to it.

In 1955 Joe Vargo, then a junior at St. Anthony, drew the emblem of Tony Teuton dressed in the helmet and half-armor of a warrior and carrying a football which has become the symbol of St. Tony's athletes.

To oppose St. Catherine's Warriors and St. Ambrose's Cavaliers St. Anthony calls up one of the most muscle-bulging groups in history.

St. Mary Beats 'Ettes

The Teutonettes fell only three points short of victory in the onegame elimination of St. David's Invitational Tournament as St. Mary of Mt. Clemens took the lead in the last seconds, ending the game

Throughout the whole game the score was kept at a 2-point difference with the 'Ettes consistently taking the lead only in the first quarter.

Winter Sports Beckon You The time of year has come again to polish up the old skates, blow the dust off hockey sticks, and hunt up any accessible toboggans. In other words, the winter sports season is upon us and Detroit is not going to be left behind for lack of places to go and things to do. Ice-skating, both figure and hockey, is readily available because of the large number of natural rivers and ponds, besides the artificial rinks. There are skating races held at Belle Isle every year and some rinks have instructors for those interested in figure skating.

If the snow is right and you have the time to drive, many of the state parks are open for tobogganing.

Also, at state parks farther up in Michigan, people young and old are participating in the breath-taking sport of skiing. If you haven't tried it yet, there are gentle slopes and instructors for you. The enjoyment of slaloming and jumping is worth the initial effort.

Winter sports are perfect for everyone, so what are you waiting

Tigers Set March1 to Open Training Season

Detroit's Tigers are planning ahead with March 1 set for the opening date of spring training at Henley Field in Lakeland, Florida.

In previous seasons, it was expected of pitchers and catchers to begin practice a week earlier but this season everyone will start at the same time.

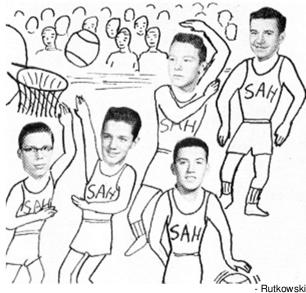

All players will be expected in Lakeland on February 29 and begin practice the following morning at the traditional Detroit training site since 1934.

Before coming north, the Tigers will contend with 13 major league teams, the first game to be played on March 12 against the Washington Senators.

They will open the American League season in Cleveland, April 19, and until that time will remain in Florida for the second straight spring.

No attempt for the signing of the American league batting champ, Harvey Kuenn, to a '60 contract is in sight at the present time. However, Kuenn will be in Detroit to accept the Leo Macdonnell Memorial Trophy, certifying him as a winner in the poll for the most valuable Detroit player last season. This will be his eighth year with the Detroit Tigers.

FIRST STRING HOOPSTERS become proficient in their sport. Dennis Fink, Dennis LeVans, Ray Fisher, Ed Kaiser, and Larry Baluch handle ball often in play.

At this point in the '59-60 basketball season, the Teutons have a 1-1

Turning the tables in the second league game of the season, the team defeated St. Stanislaus 75-46. Previously Servite had beaten them 73-32. Showing improvement since their first game, the Teutons' plays and passes displayed ease and accuracy.

Their first defeat can probably be attributed to lack of confidence when the competition started getting rough, but they learned from experience.

The j. v. took on a second victory and in both games played hard.
The Teutonettes entered St. David's Tournament with hopes of victory but were eliminated in the first game by only a 3-pt. margin.

Their defense played a magnificent game but due to lack of shooting on the part of the forwards they suffered defeat.

Experience gained from the pre-season tournament should help them develop their weak points and improve their good ones.
